Jesus told a type of story known as a parable for those that trusted in themselves to get to heaven and did not think much of other people: Two men went up to the temple to pray. One was a very religious man known as a Pharisee and the other was a tax collector. Tax collectors weren't liked among the Jews. When the Pharisee prayed, the Lord Jesus said that he "prayed... with himself." He thanked God that he wasn't like other people, including the tax collector. The tax collector could not even so much as look upwards to heaven because he was so ashamed of who he was. Instead he bowed his head and asked for God's mercy, saying that he was a sinner. Jesus said that the tax collector went home right with God and not the Pharisee.
